HERR HITLER AVERTS IMMEDIATE POLITICAL CRISIS IN GERMANY

HELEN JACOBS ELIMINATED

COLONY DOG ORDINANCE AMENDED

Firm Steps To Quell Rabies Menace.
NEW MUZZLING ORDER

Following the receipt of a menace in the Colony several amendments are to be made to the Dogs Ordinance of 1927.

The first amendment extends the licensing of dogs to that part of the mainland portion of the New Territories, which was excluded in the old regulations. The amendment provides for the licensing of all dogs, over the age of three months, except for those kept in dogs homes authorised by the regulations, or kept in non-mainland parts of the New Territories.

The second amendment extends the regulation, commonly known as the muzzling order, to parts of the mainland of the New Territories which were previously excluded. It permits any policeman, or person authorised by the Inspector General of Police to shoot or destroy any unmuzzled dog, and places the responsibility of any dog-bites, or straying un-muzzled dogs, on the owners.

This provision does not apply to any sporting dog when actually working under the holder of a game licence.

EUROPEANS ROB CHINESE

DARING OUTRAGE IN HONG KONG BANK.

$1,000 SNATCHED FROM POCKET

A sensational report was made to the police yesterday afternoon by Mr. Lee Kwok Cheung, manager of Gay Kee Sanitary Engineers, that the sum of $1,000 was pickpocketed from him while telephoning at the Hong Kong Shanghai Bank yesterday by two Europeans.

In his description of the two men Mr. Lee alleges that one is a tall, slim man about 5 ft. 9 ins. tall with fair hair, high cheek bones, and about 33 years of age. He was wearing a grey palm-branch suit with a white open-neck shirt.

The other was stout, standing about 5 ft. 2 ins. tall, and had a round face. He was wearing white clothing and was about 30 years old.

Mr. Lee also stated that he thought both were Russians.

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894, Received June 30, 8:45 a.m.)

SAN FRANCISCO, TO-DAY. THE PACIFIC COAST LONGSHOREMEN HAVE MODIFIED THEIR DEMANDS AND ARE ASKING FOR JOINT SUPERVISION OF THE HIRING HALLS. THEY ARE ALSO ASKING FOR NON-DISCRIMINATION IN FEDERAL APPOINTMENTS FOR SETTING THE ARGUMENTS.

It is reliably learned that the industrialists have rejected the modification and are insisting that the unionists accept the June 16 settlement terms which were repudiated.

Mr. O. K. Cushing, a member of the mediation committee, said that the committee had learned that the situation involved difficulties requiring patriotic consideration by both sides. The mediation parties continued yesterday.

The industrialists have postponed the forcible opening of the port until Monday.—United Press, per S. E. Levy and Company.

Deputation By British Jews On Palestinian Immigration Problem

London, To-day. A deputation from the Board of Deputies of British Jews, in an interview with the Secretary of Colonial, Sir Philip Cunliffe Liston, represented that the feeling of Palestinian and the world's Jews was that labour schedules inadequately met the economic absorptive capacity of Palestine. As a result the country was not in the position to exploit to the fullest extent its economic possibilities and natural resources.

The deputation emphasized that a large number of young, single and able-bodied persons, who had been specially trained for life in that country, were awaiting permission to enter Palestine.

The earnest hope was expressed that the Government would take into consideration the requirements of the Jewish national home, as also the condition of the majority of the (Continued on Page 9)

AUSTIN AGAIN WINS IN STRAIGHT.

SARAH PALFREY RECORDS TWO SUCCESSES

The first major sensation was provided at Wimbledon yesterday when Helen Jacobs, No. 1 ranking player, was beaten by Miss Ingram, a comparatively unknown British player.

Lester Stoeffen and Sidney Wood, two of America's foremost challengers, swept through to easy victories, while Sarah Palfrey overcame a former champion in Mrs. Godfree, formerly Miss Kitty McKane, who won the title as far back as 1924.

NEW DEVALUATION BILL

SPECIAL TO CHINA MAIL.
(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894, Received June 30, 8:45 a.m.)

Washington, To-day. Representative Dies said yesterday that he will introduce a Bill at the next Congress reducing the silver in the dollar from 412.5 grains to 206 grains, thereby making available U.S.$5,000,000,000 at new currency. He said that he was merely following the gold devaluation policy.

The action, he said, was imperative to make the tremendous public debt burden tolerable, and give the country a sound money redeemable in silver dollars.

"It will mean a 25 per cent. rise in the commodity dollar," he said.

SHANGHAI SHIPMENT INVOLVED

SPECIAL TO CHINA MAIL.
(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894, Received June 30, 8:45 a.m.)

Washington, To-day. The United States Treasury Secretary, Mr. Henry Morgenthau, said that strange and unexplained movements of silver in international trade prompted the "United States embargo on silver exports. He described one silver shipment from New York with an indefinite destination to "London or Bombay" and other from Shanghai to "Vancouver and return."

He did not explain how the embargo would affect the later but he indicated that he felt that no good could come of such strange manoeuvres.

He said that word of the Shanghai movement had been received from the Treasury agent there.

A Vancouver message states that the shipment of silver Mr. Morgenthau referred to is still at Vancouver. Valued at $200,000, it arrived last week on the Empress of Japan. It is pointed out that it will possibly return to Shanghai to-day.

PACIFIST ROLE

VON PAPEN AND GOEBBELS ARE NOW MOLLIFIED

CRITICAL PERIOD WEATHERED.

ARMY PLEDGES ALLEGIANCE

Berlin, To-day.

Rumours are legion, but a close analysis of conditions strengthens the belief that an immediate political crisis in Germany is unlikely.

Chancellor Adolf Hitler has spent the most critical week since he assumed power, but has scored a triumph as mediator of the warring elements of the Cabinet mollifying in turn Vice-Chancellor von Papen, and the Minister of Propaganda, Dr. Goebbels, following the former's belated speech at Marburg, and then the Labour Minister, Herr Selde, who was at the head of the Stahlhelm quarrel with the Brown Shirts.

Chancellor Hitler even paid a visit to the Reichstag, who was perturbed by the Nazi economic policy.

The rumours involved the Reichswehr, but the officers have made it known that they favour no political escapade and would march at the orders of President von Hindenburg and Herr Hitler only.

As regards the suggestion of a general strike, that would be most difficult to organise while to Nazi workers' leaders supervise every group in all industries.—Reuter.

Variations In Sailor Hats

Coiffure Attention Aids Small Models

EVENING BANDEAU ASSISTED

There is a great deal of talk in fashion circles about variations of the sailor and other bonnets that cover only one small spot on the right side of your head. So let's have a beauty talk about coiffures to wear with these little wisps of straw and felt.

Hair is shorter this season. Bobbed locks are clipped quite high on the neck and long coiffures are arranged up on the back of the head instead of in low, flat buns on the neck.

The next important consideration is curls. Little round flat curls vie with wide waves and combinations of both are chic.

Shoulder Length Hair
To-day we concentrate on a coiffure for shoulder-length hair which emphasizes the two important points already mentioned.

The hair is parted high on the right side and the back is rolled and pinned, not straight across the back of the head but vertically from nape of neck to crown of head.

The roll is soft and fastened with invisible pins.

There is one wide wave on the left side and a very small one on the right. From the wave downward on both sides the hair is arranged in tiny curls that are also pinned securely.

This is very flattering with a diminutive hat that shows practically the entire head and also very good for evening when one wears an Albee in Wonderland bandeau of tortoise shell studded with three large pearls.

ON ACQUIRING THAT PARISIAN AIR

Hints For Beginners In Dress-Making

ORIGINALITY KEYNOTE

London.
Just how to achieve that Parisian air for amateur clothes is a problem for every ambitious home dressmaker.

"A subtle touch here and a subtle touch there," the wise ones say. But when asked what is meant by "a subtle touch," they indicate a mystery. Yet it is certain that a good many amateur clothes to-day are walking side by side with their more sophisticated sisters and few there be who guess which is the amateur and which is the professional. For more and more home dressmakers are winning the knack of giving professional touches to amateur clothes.

How It Is Done

How do they do it? Probably in very much the same way that everything else worth doing is done. Remember the old copybook rule, "Genius is the infinite capacity for taking pains." Add to that the power of observation, and just ordinary ability of doing things with your hands and you have the deep and mysterious secret—you have the subtle touch!

Something Simple To Start

If you are a beginner in the field of amateur sewing you will need a few pertinent hints from the very start. First of all if your material is of the sort that is inclined to shrink when it is wet, have it shrunk. Go to a good tailor and have him do it professionally. It will be well worth your while to have that done. For a sad and sorry sight is a garment which shrinks in the first shower!

If you are a beginner you should start with something simple, a blouse or a dress with simple straight and uncomplicated lines. Choose a good pattern such as McCall's and follow it as faithfully as a mariner follows his chart. That does not mean that you may not with assurance introduce your own little quirks and fancies, the things that give originality to the garment and make it yours and yours alone.

An extremely pleasing sports costume is brought into vogue by Claire Trevor, film actress. The frock is of red crepe with a double shawl collar of red crepe and white pique. The coat, yoked like the frock, has three-quarter length sleeves, banded in red, and linked with crystal cubes. An off-the-face red leghorn hat completes the outfit.

Powder And Your Complexion

Correct Shades For Blonde Brunette

NEVER OVER-POWDER IN DAYTIME

The wrong shade of powder will mar the best complexion.

A very fair skin can take on a rough, chalky appearance if too dark powder is used on it.

A dark-skinned beauty can give the richness of her skin a depressing grayish tinge, if she has used a shade of powder which is too light.

The weight and texture of your powder is also important. The finer and slighter the powder, the more smoothly and naturally it will blend with the skin. If one uses an over heavy powder, the skin loses its clearness, and any suggestion of the finest and finest lines begin to look like furrows.

Careful Grading

It is best to choose a medium-weight powder, and, if it is too heavy, mix it with a lighter one until the correct weight is found. In choosing shades of powder, remember that the most normal skin has a touch of yellow in it. All face powders should have just a trace of yellow to supplement their tone.

The blonde needs a powder of a natural or pale peach shade (there are various tones in every shade).

A brunette requires a Rachel or a darker peach shade, according to the exact colour of her complexion; an olive complexion (and this can be such a charming one) requires a shade which has more of a yellow tone.

In striking flesh tone, this lovely gown offers a return to net for summer evening wear. The frock features extreme "strap" detailing. Slightly tucked to the bouffant effect, that begins at the knee and rises to meet the new "kind wrap" drapery at the waistline at the back. It is worn with a charming ruffled net cape, by Jean Honors, feature screen actress.

quires a shade which has more of a yellow tone.

A "Little Extra"

Auburn hair usually has its own beautiful skin colour. One might recommend a deep flesh powder for this. Chestnut auburn hair needs a powder of a pinky shade, with more brown in its composition.

Day-time powdering should never be overdone. Its object is to protect the skin, and to act as a dainty finish. In the evenings we can allow more "make-up," as artificial light improves it. The blonde can use a delicate green-shaded powder, which will give her skin an exquisitely translucent look. At all times your face powder will do its work for your skin better if you smooth it over very gently, with the finger-tips.

Crocheted Frocks Popular

Made With Linen Or Cotton Thread.

EASY TO MAKE IN SPARE TIME

LONDON.

WOMEN of 1934 are taking great pride in the work of their hands.

The reason is simple enough when one displays a costume such as the one described here, and tells a woman that she can crochet it herself.

For the woman who thinks that a sweater blouse is the utmost limit to which she could go in the croch-ing line, we would point out that one woman of our acquaintance has, within the last year, made several knitted suits for herself, and some for her two daughters—and she is a busy person, with even less than the usual amount of spare time on her hands—which is proof of the fact that such costumes, either knitted or crocheted, are not too difficult for the average person to make.

Linen Thread Suit

This three-piece suit may be made of linen or cotton thread, and so will be comfortable to wear even in warm weather.

The stitch used is simple and very effective, and the striped blouse gives an opportunity to use the colour contrast that is so good at the moment. The suit we saw was developed in brown, with the blouse striped in brown, yellow and white, and it was very smart. But there are any number of other combinations that might be used effectively—a bright blue suit, for instance, with the blouse striped in the same blue, combined with green and rust colour.

BRIDGE NOTES

ETHICALLY SPEAKING

by Ely Culbertson.

One who writes much on the game of Bridge finds that there are submitted to him not only questions involving the bidding and play of the hand but matters of ethics as well. There is no game which has a higher standard of ethics than Bridge.

It is necessary for popularity of Bridge that this be so because players inclined to be unethical could for a short period reap a rich profit by unethical or sharp practice against ethical players.

Typical of many of these questions bearing on the matter of ethics is the following:

"I was Declarer, playing the hand a six spades doubled, vulnerable. The Opening lead (at my left) was the Ace of diamonds. Having none in the closed hand, I trumped. My next lead (from my hand) was the King of spades, and as I pulled it out, instead came the nine of diamonds, which dropped down on the table. I grabbed it back quickly, after letting out a gasp.

"I was on the point of commenting on it when I remembered that I had read somewhere that if you accidentally revoked and your opponents did not call your attention to it, not to mention it.

"So I kept still. I made six spades. Opponents said: 'Well done.' They had not noticed my diamond revoke. As it happened, diamonds were not led again until mine fell at the end. Our opponents were satisfied.

One said: 'Made six' when my partner burst out: 'Down two!' I told him he had no business to say that or give them 500. He is an expert player here and was very emphatic and positive, and further went on to comment that we were playing a friendly game and wanted our contracts honestly—as if I had been cheating.

"Although we have thrashed it over at our Bridge club, and other good players say he is wrong, he is still very positive and unbending in his own opinion of the matter. He is wrong, isn't he?"

This question was submitted to me by a lady in Honolulu and to it I made the following response:

The ethical issue you raise is covered by Section 3 of the Supplement of the Laws, which reads as follows:

"It is not wrong, except as specially provided, in the case of Dummy, to warn a partner against infringing any rule of the game, e.g., against calling, leading or playing out of turn. Nor is it wrong to keep silent in regard to a revoke by one's own side except where it is a revoke in the twelfth trick."

Thus in the particular case which you cite there was no ethical obligation upon either you or your partner to call attention to the fact that you had revoked.

It would have been ethically wrong for you to have attempted to conceal the revoke by failing to play the diamond on a subsequent trick if diamonds were led during the course of the play. It would have been ethically wrong for you to have attempted to conceal the revoke, by claiming the tricks and not exposing the entire hand at any time during the course of the play.

But if you did neither of these things and played the diamond face up upon the table where your adversaries could see it, and claim the penalty for a revoke, then you in no way violated the code of ethics laid down for the government of the game of Bridge.

Bridge players should always be quick to concede every right of their opponents. If they have violated the laws in any way the payment of the penalty should be immediate and ungrudging. They are not, however, the guardians of their adversaries. No player should ever intentionally revoke, but if he has unintentionally revoked then it is up to his opponents to enforce the proper penalty.

F. Brink Your Printing Problems to Us.

King Boris, who is believed to have inspired the coup d'etat that placed Bulgaria under a Fascist military dictatorship, is one of the few fighting monarchs left in the world. Since he succeeded his father, King Ferdinand, in 1918, he has been busy quelling internal strife. Attempts on his life have been frequent, and, although he has declared he would rather be a working man in America than a king, he has steadfastly refused to be driven off the throne. He is a prize favorite with the Bulgarian army and, more important, with Premier Benito Mussolini of Italy. King Boris' marriage to Princess Giovanna of Italy in 1930 is said to have sealed a secret political understanding with Rome. Bulgaria's royal couple have one child, Princess Marie Louise.

Cinema Notes

"Female", a melodrama, featuring Ruth Chatterton in the role of a big business woman, a vamp, and a siren, is First National's latest production now showing at the Queen's Theatre.

In this strange role, Miss Chatterton appears as the ruthless executive of a huge motor car concern in which, differing from her usual portrayals, she is the vibrant and dominating head. In the midst of her business career, she manages amorous advances on the part of her subordinates.

Discarding three suitors from amongst her employees, she is eventually overwhelmed by George Brent who, slighting her, makes a vivid impression which she cannot rebut.

Supporting Miss Chatterton and George Brent are Phillip Faverham, Johnny Mack Brown, Gavin Gordon, Ruth Donnelly and Ferdinand Gottschalk.

"EVER IN MY HEART"

ALHAMBRA THEATRE

A picture that calls for the expression of the deepest and most powerful emotions she has yet been called upon to portray, Barbara Stanwyck plays the part of the young wife to perfection in Warner Brothers' current production "Ever in My Heart," now showing at the Alhambra Theatre.

The picture, fashioned from the story written by Beulah Marie Dix and Bertram Milhauser combines romance with action and pathos. It is the story of a New England girl's marriage to a German Professor, who was later called to duty on behalf of Germany during the Great War.

The drama becomes tense as they are torn apart by circumstances they cannot surmount and winds up with a smashing climax when they come face to face in France, where the young wife is a canteen worker and her husband a spy in the German army.

Supporting Miss Stanwyck is Otto Kruger. Other players in the cast include Ralph Bellamy, Ruth Donnelly, Laura Hope Crews, Frank Albertson, Clara Blandick, Elizabeth Patterson and Harry Beresford.

"BOMBHELL"

ORIENTAL THEATRE

Jean Harlow, the famous platinum blonde, appears with Lee Tracy, in a fast moving comedy satire on Hollywood, "Bombshell," the M.G.M. release now showing at the Oriental Theatre.

Jean Harlow, as "Lola," Peoria livery stable keeper's daughter, is assisted to the heights of Hollywood's stardom by the efforts of an unscrupulous press agent, Lee Tracy.

The supporting cast is a strong one and includes Frank Morgan, Francis Tone, Pat O'Brien, Una Merkel and Ted Healy.

"THE GOOD COMPANIONS"

STAR THEATRE

Seldom has a great novel been translated to the screen with such meticulous regard for atmosphere as "The Good Companions," the current attraction at the Star Theatre.

Mr. J. B. Priestley's famous characters are brilliantly reproduced and the director, Victor Saville, preserves throughout the spirit of the novel.

Jessie Matthews stars in the role of Susie Dean, and with her are John Gielgud, as Inigo Jollifant, Edmund Gwenn, as Jess Oakroyd, and Mary Glynn, as Miss Trant, lending splendid support.

"THE FOURTH HORSEMAN"

MAJESTIC THEATRE

"The Fourth Horseman," featuring Tom Mix, noted cowboy star, is Universal Picture's current release now showing at the Majestic Theatre.

The story, written by Nina Wilcox Putnam, is a smashing drama of the "Wild West." Supporting Tom Mix are Margaret Lindsay, Raymond Hatton, Fred Kohler and Buddy Roosevelt.

"GOOD DAME"

KING'S THEATRE

Sylvia Sydney and Fredric March, who were last seen together in "Merrily We Go to Hell," make a welcome return to the screen in Paramount's latest production, "Good Dame."

Again they demonstrate their superb ability to sustain appealing characterisations through a fine and entertaining picture.

The story, written by William Lyman, with dialogue by Sam Hellman, noted humorist, is the tale of a carnival and is helped out of scrape after scrape by March.

"ISLE OF PARADISE"

The picture, as an insight into the lives, manner, and culture of the southern people, is indeed unique.

CROWD ARRESTS POLICEMAN

Wounded Postman With Sabre

Prague.

A constable, still in uniform and wearing his sabre, went into a Prague cafe when he came on his beat.

He became so cheered that he decided to entertain the company by showing them what a "third degree" examination was like—and began to shout questions at a woman customer.

When other customers protested he drew his sabre and wounded a postman.

The sabre was twisted out of the policeman's hand, so he ran into a park opposite and began to threaten people with the scabbard.

A crowd followed and sized him, and as no other policeman was in sight they took him to the police station, themselves. He struggled violently the whole way.—Reuter.

WINNING GOAL THAT NEVER CAME

Buenos Aires. It was the most important match of the soccer season in Buenos Aires.

The Charcarita Juniors swept up the field, and the Racing Club half-backs could do nothing to stop them.

Juan Blas, a fervent supporter of the Racing Club, leaned forward excitedly in his seat as he watched the Charcarita right-winger trap the ball, dribble past the full back, and make ready to shoot.

The crowd of 36,000 strained forward in silent expectancy. Not so Juan Blas.

He drew a whistle from his pocket and blew three sharp trills. The Charcarita winger stopped short in his shot and turned round. He thought it was the referee.

The game was saved for the Racing Club—but it took the combined force of six mounted and 12 foot police to save Juan Blas.

He is now recovering from his wounds in the Municipal Hospital.

A London bookmaker bought a halfshare in a Colombo ticket in the Irish sweepstake on the Derby from a Parsee for the low sum of 5500 rupees (£412 sterling).

The Parsee, whose name is Mr. S. D. Patel, is a thirty-five-year-old bachelor employed in a European firm in Bombay.

He said: "I am now not averse to getting married, but I am going to keep my job. I waited for a better offer for a half-share in my ticket, but accepted this as nothing better turned up."

A whole ticket for Colombo was valued at £11,000 in London.

Rambling Sets up Record In White City Contest

(By GUY M. BUTLER)

This country is already extraordinarily strong in first-class half-milers, and yesterday afternoon another first-rater came to the fore.

He was R. F. McCabe (L.A.C.). In his heat he returned 1 min. 56 secs., yet he eased up considerably in the last fifty yards.

At present he is quite lacking in experience. This was demonstrated when he went all out in the heat. He paid the penalty in the final, when he had to struggle to reach third place in about seconds' slower time. All the same, he is young and likely to go far.

A. V. Reeve ran a very pretty mile for the Polytechnic Harriers, winning from J. V. Powell (L.A.C.) in 4 mins. 22.4-5 secs. (Continued on Page 5)

MEMORABLE GAME FOR 3 HOURS

MARGARET SCRIVEN RETAINS TITLE

HELEN JACOBS APPEALS AGAINST LIGHT

HEROIC PLAY BY HOLDER

(By A. Wallis Myers)

GERMANY, THROUGH ITS YOUNG CHAMPION, BARON GOTTFRIED VON CRAMM, SCORED A SIGNAL TRIUMPH TO-DAY, WHEN IT SECURED THE FRENCH CHAMPIONSHIP IN A FIELD THAT INCLUDED NEARLY ALL THE WORLD'S BEST AMATEURS.

In a final, memorable alike for its high quality of play and for the heroic resistance of both men for nearly three hours, von Cramm defeated the holder, J. H. Crawford by three sets to two—after the Australian was within a point of victory in the fourth set. The score was 6-4, 7-9, 3-6, 7-5, 6-3.

Narrowly robbed of the men's singles, the British Empire retained the women's singles. After a great struggle of two hours, ending in failing light at eight o'clock, Miss M. C. Scriven, the Yorkshire girl of 22, who had won the title as an unseeded player last year, beat Miss Helen Jacobs, the champion of America, by two sets to one. (7-5, 4-6, 6-1).

A large and orderly crowd, with the British Ambassador in the committee box, had their full meed of excitement.

It was a striking tribute to the evolution of the sporting atmosphere in France, first that two matches in which no French player participated should have attracted such concentrated interest, and, secondly, that a German should have won such unstinted applause from a Paris crowd as was accorded to von Cramm.

Match Starts Too Late

The women's final was started too late, having regard to its importance, and the length of the rallies, which could have been anticipated.

Miss Scriven and Miss Jacobs not only have unbounded energy on the tennis court, but they both command indomitable spirit, and since one was using top spin and the other underspin, there was a permanent break on every stroke, so that neither could steer the ball away from the other.

Where will-power counted for so much, and both girls showed it to the nth degree, it follows that the player who could face the handicap of the growing darkness with the greater equanimity might have a decisive advantage. Heavy clouds increased the gathering gloom.

No Interval Taken

At the end of the second set, when both were level, it was obvious that if the regulation ten minutes' interval were taken the match could never be finished that night. After some hesitation the

Plucky Young German

The ovation given to von Cramm after he had beaten Crawford was thoroughly deserved. He gave a beautifully balanced display of aggressive tennis against one of the world's best generals, who searched both his strokes and stamina.

His pluck needs only the illustration that when Crawford, after leading 5-4 in the fourth set, threw up a perfect lob in the tenth game at match point, von Cramm brought off a winning smash that only a player with championship metal in him could have achieved.

This stroke not only saved the match, it may be said to have won it, for from that moment the young German never looked back.

His play in the fifth set was full of the intensive vigour, exemplified by service aces, that he had shown in his duels with Menzel and de Stefani. This final assault could only have been delivered by a man in perfect athletic training, who had anticipated every eventuality.

Fighting Fit

When von Cramm realised, earlier in the tournament, that the French championship was within his grasp he asked his partner to release him from the mixed doubles. Thus his mind and muscles were free for the supreme effort.

No fitter challenger has ever entered the championship arena since Anthony Wilding, to whom, by the way, he bears some physical resemblance.

As for Crawford, who like the great-hearted played he is, gave a sterling display even when the prize had eluded him in that fateful tenth game, there is no question that he had given a hostage to fortune by engaging in seven sets of doubles the previous day.

He may be used to such big doses of strenuous exertion in Australia, but he rarely meets opponents with such stamina reserves as had von Cramm, who had no defensive weapons in his bag.

It was clear, as soon as the German had won his first service game with two fiery aces and had broken through Crawford's service in the third game, that a final of rich quality was in prospect.

Here was an opponent for Crawford who had a backhand drive as accurate and as firm under pressure as his own, and one who, like the Australian, could search out the corners on both sides of the court, preserving throughout a magnificent length.

Weakness Near Net

Only near the net was von Cramm less sure of his aim. It was Crawford's policy to draw him forward if possible, and then use his fine range of elusive passing shots. But these coups, finely conceived and carried out, could not effect the destiny of the set unless Crawford could break through the German's service to counter-balance the loss of his own.

This was von Cramm's great asset, and although Crawford was always one game in front through the long and tortuous second set, the holder could never win it until the German was forced to concede his service in the sixteenth game. Then he missed a smash and Crawford began the third set with the feeling that, after all, his adversary was possibly vulnerable.

His confidence, and that of his many Australian supporters in the crowd, was increased when he broke through again in the second game of the third set, and passed serenely to go out, in spite of losing his own service in the seventh game, at 6-3.

Crawford's Wise Move

Crawford had wisely speeded up throughout this bout, sending it great strategic value. Where he had been content before to take the defensive, using his superb resources at the back of the court, he now assumed the attack, and although the German's resistance seemed just as strong, the greater genius was at this stage with Crawford.

After the interval the tide still flowed in favour of Sydney.

The same beautiful back-hand exchanges were on view and the quality of the contest remained just as high, but Crawford got an ominous break-through in the seventh game, and it looked when he held his service for 5-3 that he must have a lien on the match.

He could afford to see von Cramm serve a couple of aces in the ninth game.

Then came the all-important tenth game. The Australian's strength must have been waning, for he seemed to wait for his opponent to err. With great spirit von Cramm forced his way to 80—40. Crawford fended him off nobly and got within a stroke of victory. I have described what happened then, and how von Cramm went out stolidly for a winning coup overhead. Once level at 6-5 all he played superbly, and Crawford signified his reaction by serving two double faults in the twelfth game to give the German the set.

GERMAN BEATEN IN HURDLES BUT WINS

The new special race-filming camera, used for the first time in England, failed to agree with the judges' verdicts in two important events at the British Games meeting held at the White City on Whit-Monday.

The races concerned were the 120 yards hurdles match and the 100 yards open final. The judges gave their verdict in the hurdles to the German, E. Wagner, who they thought had won by inches from the Englishman, T. D. Phelan. When the film used in the time race camera was developed, it was clearly shown that Phelan crossed the line ahead of the German.

In the 100 yards the judges declared that E. L. Page was second and F. R. Hunter, third, whereas the film reveals a dead-heat with Hunter just ahead after the line had been crossed.

VELSHEDA BREAKS HER FLEXIBLE BOOM

CATASTROPHE WHEN LEADING

AMERICA'S CUP ENTRANT WINS FIRST RACE

(By MAJOR B. HECKSTALL-SMITH).

London, June 8.

THE America's Cup challenger, Endeavour, won her first race on Saturday under the flag of the Royal Harwich Yacht Club.

The weather, however, was all against the big boats, for, after Velsheda had broken her flexible boom, the others retired at the end of the first round, a distance of only seventeen miles. Mr. Ross Taylor, commodore of the Royal Harwich Y.C., announced later at the annual dinner of the club at Felixstowe that although, owing to the heavy weather, the yachts had all retired of their own accord the committee had decided to award the prizes as if the race had been completed.

MR. SOPWITH, OWNER OF ENDEAVOUR, EXPLAINED THAT AT THE VERY OUTSET OF THE SEASON THEY NATURALLY DID NOT WISH TO RISK BREAKAGE WHEN MR. STEPHENSON'S YACHT VELSHEDA—WHICH WAS LEADING AND SAILING SO WELL THAT IN HIS OPINION SHE MIGHT HAVE WON—BROKE HER BOOM THERE WAS NO POINT IN SAILING THE SECOND ROUND OF THE COURSE IN THE GREATLY INCREASING WIND.

The committee's decision means that the Endeavour has made an auspicious start. She beat Britannia by 2 min. 48 sec., representing a distance of about half a mile.

Candida and Astra were a long way astern, and the performance of the challenger was all that could be desired. She is unquestionably a powerful vessel in a strong breeze. Velsheda, the challenger's principal opponent, was actually ahead of Endeavour by about 200 yards when her boom broke and put her out of the race.

STRONG WIND AND TIDE

When the six big cutters came out of Harwich Harbour there was a fresh north-easterly breeze blowing, and it was increasing in strength with the flood tide. The start outside, near the Cork light-ship, was at eleven o'clock. This was about an hour after low water, and a strong flood had begun to run.

Endeavour, Velsheda and Shamrock V. came out with reefed mainsails, while Britannia, Candida and Astra had whole sail. Endeavour shook out her reef before the race began, but Velsheda and Shamrock V. remained reefed.

Capt. Mountfield, the professional skipper of Velsheda, made an excellent start, crossing the line close-hauled on the port tack. Mr. Sopwith, at the wheel of Endeavour, was second.

MISHAP TO VELSHEDA

I suppose we had been pounding into wind and sea for about half an hour when the flexible boom of Velsheda broke. It may be recalled Endeavour broke hers in the Solent, and she was not using a flexible boom on Saturday, and the King's vessel is not fitted with one of these spars. This accident destroyed the chief interest of the race, which was a test of the J Class rivals, Endeavour and Velsheda.

The retirement of Velsheda left Endeavour leading the fleet followed by Britannia, Candida and Astra. Shamrock V., in a hopeless position in the strong wind and a mileastern of Endeavour, gave up. The Cup challenger sailed like a really good boat. She fetched the weather mark, the south-west Bawdsey buoy, two minutes ahead of Britannia and four minutes ahead of Candida.

It must, however, be said that Britannia's weatherly work was the best, because she had made a bad start and worked through into second place.

The remainder of the race was a wild run and reach down-wind, round the Rough buoy, the Cork lightship and back into Harwich harbour. I do not think there was much difference with free sheets in the speed of Endeavour and Britannia. Both ran away from Candida, while Astra was left far astern.

The Cup challenger crossed the line off Felixstowe dock pier with a handsome lead. There was now too much wind to continue with safety.

RAMPLING SETS UP RECORD IN WHITE CITY CONTEST

The 120 yards hurdles was disappointing in that D. O. Finlay and C. F. Stanwood were absentees. The Irish champion, T. D. Phelan, though he had to run hard to beat J. P. Gabriel (L.A.C.) in the heat, walked away in the final in 15.45 secs.

The Marathon went, as expected, to D. McLeod Wright, the Scots veteran, in the very, slow time of 2 hrs. 56 mins. 30 secs.

The general opinion among those following the race was that the contrary wind added at least a quarter of an hour if not twenty minutes to the time.

L. H. Weatherill, the S. L. H. cross-country runner, was running in a Marathon for the first time. He led the field up to 22 miles, but had shot his bolt and only just crawled home into third place, being passed on the track by R. F. J. Nichols (Reading A.C.) 600 yards from home.

What Australia Thought of Rival Test Selection

Pleased That Clark Unavailable

SURPRISED AT GEARY'S INCLUSION

Melbourne, June 6.
Commenting on the selection of the England team to meet Australia in the first Test Match at Nottingham, Hugh Trumble says the English selectors are certainly bent on including fast bowlers, but thinks there should have been another slow bowler included. "The batting is obviously strong; but so is the Australian batting," he adds.

Ex-Manager, Kelly, says: "The greatest menace to our batting, Clark, is unable to play. I am surprised at the inclusion of Mitchell in preference to Robins."

Mr. W. J. Johnson, an ex-selector, is surprised at the choice of Geary, although if the fast bowling is collared by the Australians the Leicester man might be able to peg the batsmen down.

W. J. Ransford, an old Australian batsman, takes an optimistic view and says: "Although the England team looks good on paper they will miss Clark."

England lost the first Test by 238 runs, but won the second by an innings. The third Test will commence at Manchester (Old Trafford) next Friday.

ARSENAL SECURE COPPING

International Leaves Yorkshire

London, June 6.
Arsenal on Saturday secured for a big fee the transfer of Copping, the Leeds United and English International, half-back.

Copping, who first played in League football in 1930, was capped against Italy and Switzerland in the season 1932-33, and last winter gained further recognition against all the home countries and France.

Arsenal recently signed another first-class half-back in Crayston, of Bradford.

IRISH LADIES' GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP

MISS PENTONY LOSES TITLES

MRS. JAMESON'S TRIUMPH

London, June 6.
Miss E. C. Pentony, the holder, was beaten in the first round of the Irish Ladies' Championship at Portmarnock yesterday by Mrs. J. F. Jameson, who was runner-up in 1925 and 1930, by four and three.

Almost from the start Mrs. Jameson gained an advantage. Turning two up, she became four up at the 13th, and won two holes later, playing her short game so brilliantly that Miss Pentony was never given a chance to get a hole back.

FEW GAMES GO TO 17TH
Mrs. J. B. Walker, who won in 1930 from Mrs. Jameson, made short shrift of her first-round opponent, Mrs. McCabe, who lost nine of the first 10 holes, halving the other.

Easy victories were the rule rather than the exception. Only 10 of the 29 games played went to the 17th green and only four went to the 18th. Whether or not the state of the course caused the runaway victories cannot be decided, but it is certain that it produced some freak shots.

Weather conditions were delightful, but the links were burnt up through the drought. One of the few last-hole games was that between Mrs. Cuthell and Miss C. Tierman. Mrs. Cuthell, who as Miss Rhona Adair was winning British and Irish championships 34 years ago, was beaten by one hole.

L. N. Constantine, the Nelson (Lancashire League) cricket professional, is out of cricket with fluid on the knee.

MIRACULOUS ESCAPE IN HURRICANE

Night Of Terror In Frozen South.

WHALE-CATCHERS' GRAPHIC

Cape Town. Seventy men who escaped from the jaws of death in a furious Antarctic gale, and who were at one time given up for lost, are now in Cape Town. They are the crews of seven whale catchers which limped into Table Bay battered and rusty, with wrecked bridges, rails twisted and torn, and lifeboats carried away.

The men told a graphic tale of their miraculous escape from death in a sudden hurricane that swept down upon the little fleet of ships on the whaling grounds, scattering them right and left, putting their wirelesses out of action, and causing the mother ship to call vainly for them until at last she decided that all the catchers were lost with their crews.

The gale was preceded by a remarkably sudden fall in the barometric pressure the reading at one time being 27.3 inches on an aneroid barometer, which is believed to be the lowest ever recorded in the Antarctic.

"Not in my 20 years' experience of Antarctic whaling have I ever experienced such weather," said the captain of one of the catchers. "That nightmare night of February 20 was the vilest I have ever lived through. Honestly, not one of us expected to see the dawn."

Bridge Wrecked By Gale.

Standing on the wrecked bridge of his ship, boarded up with rough planks and canvas, the whaling captain told how the gale had suddenly swept down upon them. The whalers had run before the gale, but soon became separated from each other and from the mother ship. With their wireless telephone equipment they were able to keep in constant touch with each other, however, and report how they were progressing. Then a blinding snowstorm swept down and reduced visibility to a few yards. Icebergs were scattered here and there, and the whalers had to stop for fear of crashing into them. With their engines running at three-quarter speed they were just able to hold their own. "The wind was terrific," continued the captain. "Our ship heeled over at an acute angle and was constantly on her beam ends. Every wave swept completely over us. It was awful up there on the bridge, surrounded by darkness, the fleet stinging our faces and the ship rolling horribly while we tried to keep her head to the sea. Suddenly a wave crashed down on the ship and heeled her right over. She was just beginning to recover when a second hurled itself upon her and plumed her down."

Captain Washed From Wheel. "We thought she would never right herself. It was impossible to stand upon the deck. Then came a third wave, bigger than the rest. It crashed right over the bridge. I was caught in the wall of water and hurled aft. My head hit something and I knew no more for a few seconds. When I recovered my senses I was jammed between two bars of the railing, with my body halfway over the side. Before the next wave came I wriggled free and dashed to safety. It was a narrow escape."

"When I climbed the ladder to the bridge I found the bridge wasn't there any more. It had simply vanished, and with it the compass, the searchlight, and part of the wireless installation. The sidelights were gone and wreckage littered the deck. The ship was still held over on her beam ends, and where the starboard lifeboat had been were just a few planks. The davits, made of three-inch solid steel, were twisted like wire."

The captain stated that they owed their lives to a five-degree difference in temperature. Pre-

RABIES NOW IN KOWLOON

Dog's Brain Found To Be Diseased.

STATEMENT FROM POLICE
CHIEF

Bacteriological examination of the brain of a dog owned by Mr. C. M. Hall, a resident at the Peninsula Hotel, Kowloon, has definitely established that the rabies menace has invaded Kowloon.

The dog, which was removed to the Mataukok confinement home, on Tuesday, died after having bitten an amah. An examination carried out yesterday showed that death was due to rabies.

As a result of bacteriological examination of the brains of other animals, an additional two cases have now been revealed, bringing the total number of animals affected by the disease to 14. The latest cases occurred in the New Territories.

No further cases of human Rabies have been reported. The amah who was bitten by a rabid dog in the Peninsula Hotel is still detained at the Kowloon Hospital, where she is receiving treatment.

In a statement to the Press, the Hon. Mr. E. D. C. Wolfe, C.M.G., Inspector General of Police, said that, following on the case of rabies at Kwant, in the vicinity of the military camp, Police were instructed to shoot all dogs which might have been possible contacts in the affected area, Sheungshui and Shataukok districts.

The New Territories which has had exemption from the regulations regarding the licensing of dogs and the muzzling order, will no longer be exempt.

New regulations, which are being brought into force to-day, dispose of the exemption and the regulations will now apply to all parts of the Colony.

SPANISH BAIT FOR BRITISH ANGLERS

Attracting Tourists To Santander

Madrid. British anglers are expected to benefit from the thoughtfulness of the Fishing Clubs of Santander and Liernanes.

Ten thousand trout and 5,000 salmon have been "dumped" in the River Miers, by these two clubs, to provide sport for British anglers who it is hoped will visit the Santander district in the summer.

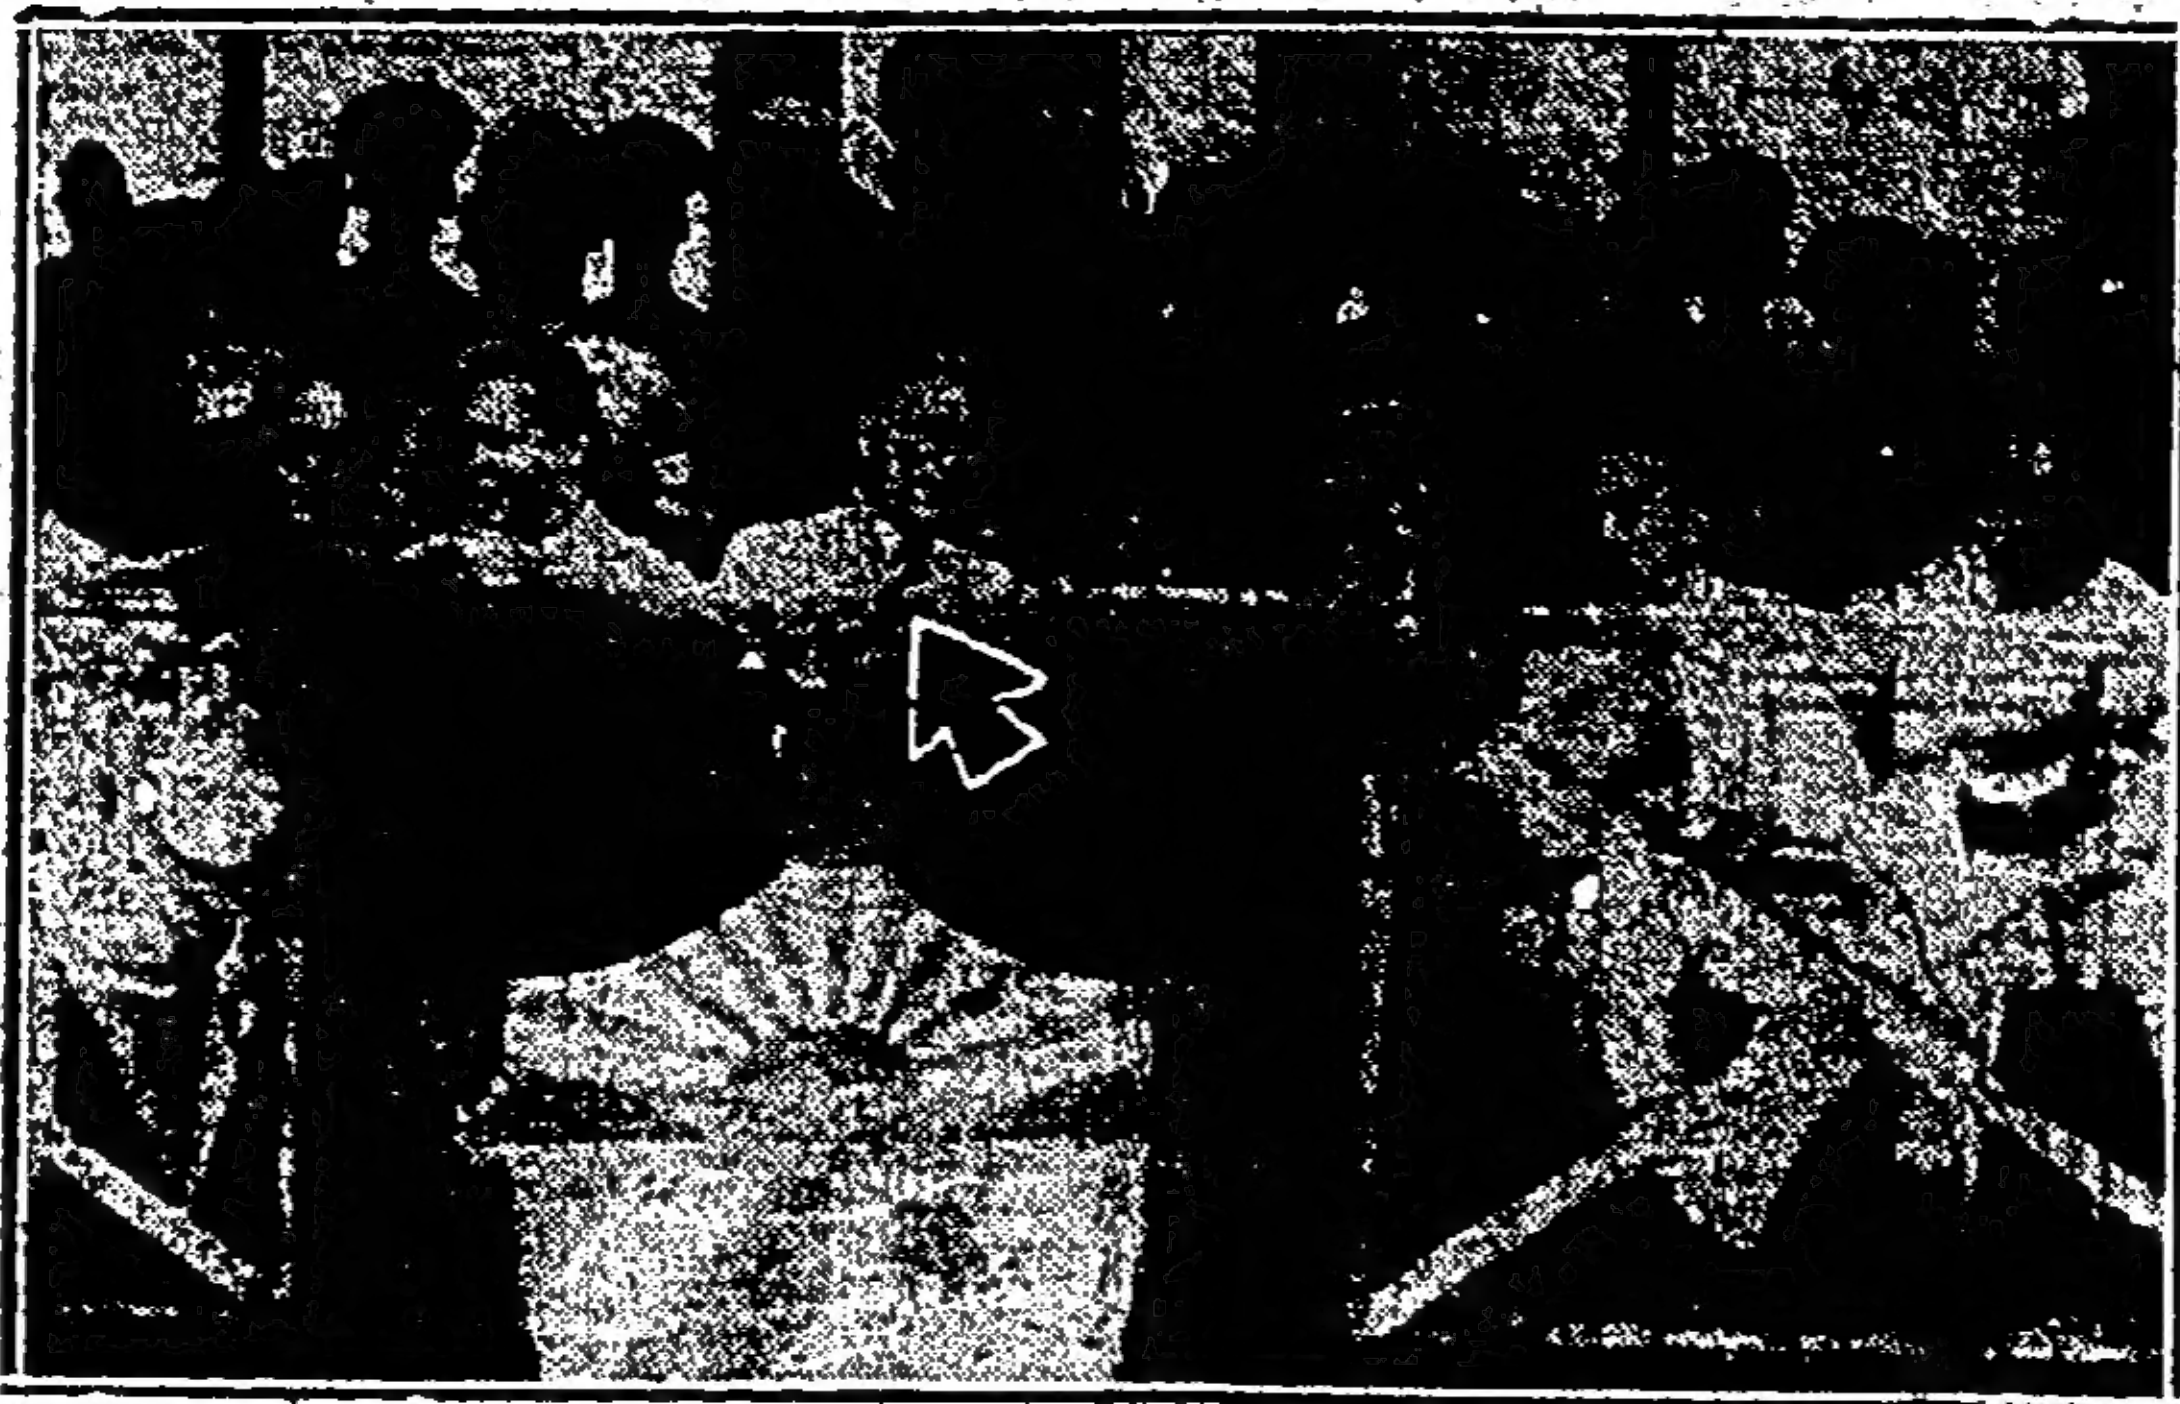

As an example of the sport to be expected local anglers recently landed no fewer than 20 salmon, weighing on an average of 25lb., each, in one afternoon. The fish were given to the Corporation, for the unemployed.—Reuter.

vious nights had been bitterly cold, and the water had frozen as soon as it struck life decks and rigging. Every hour or two the vessels had to stop to cut away the ice which was weighing them down and making them top-heavy.

Saved By Temperature. "On this memorable night the temperature was just below freezing point," he said. "That was what saved us. Had the water frozen on our little ship as she lay on her beam ends nothing could have saved her from toppling over. We should have had no time to cut the ice away—all our efforts were concentrated the seas."

One by one the wireless installations of the catchers were carried away. The factory ship, the Vestfold, which was herself battling against the gale and had all her work out to keep herself afloat, kept sending out messages to the little vessels, even at the height of the gale. One by one their replies ceased. Those on the factory ship, unaware of what was happening, thought the catchers had foundered.

Meanwhile, with six feet of water in her 'tween decks, her steering gear damaged, and water mixed with her oil fuel, causing the steam pressure to fall, the factory ship was battling hard to keep afloat. The wooden planks of her hullboard deck were washed overboard, while the windows of her wireless cabin, 60 feet above the sea, were carried away. Buckets had to be used to bale the water out of the wireless room.—Reuter.

OLD RESIDENT'S DEATH

Mr. Lo Cheung-Shiu
At Age Of 67.

PROMINENT BUSINESSMAN

Mr. Lo Cheung-shiu, one of the Colony's most distinguished men of commerce and former compradore of Messrs. Jardine, Matheson & Co., passed away at his residence at 12.30 o'clock last night at the age of 67 years.

He was one of the oldest of the Justices of the Peace in the Colony and was the recipient of a Certificate of Honour on His Majesty's birthday in 1930.

He was chairman of the Tung Wah Hospital in 1915, and has been a member of the Permanent Advisory Board ever since. He was also a member of the District Watch Committee, a member of the Permanent Board of the Po Leung Kuk, Vice-Chairman of the Chinese General Chamber of Commerce and a member of the Executive Committee for many years.

Mr. Lo, too, was a director of the China Light and Power and the Hong Kong Construction Companies.

He is survived by four sons, Messrs. M. K. Lo, M. W. Lo, M. H. Lo and Horace Lo, all well-known in Hong Kong; and five daughters, Mrs. Ho Leung, Mrs. Ho Ki, Mrs. Chao, Mrs. John Litton and Mrs. K. W. Chau.

While funeral arrangements had not been made last night, it was revealed that the service would take place until Sunday, in any event.

WEST POINT GAS EXPLOSION

Fire Brigade Officers' Evidence.

MISSILE THEORY DISPUTED

That it was impossible for any missile to have been blown from No. 13, Chung Shing Street, either out of the side windows or from the roof, to the gasometer, was the opinion expressed by Mr. J. C. Fitz-Henry, Deputy Superintendent of the Fire Brigade, in evidence at the resumed inquiry yesterday into the West Point Gas explosion.

Mr. Fitz-Henry further stated that he found no traces of any explosion in No. 13, Chung Shing Street, but stated that there was an explosion in the Indian Watchman's hut. There was plenty of evidence of the degree of burning caused by the fire to support his theory that there was no explosion in No. 13, Chung Shing Street.

The inquiry is being conducted by Mr. E. W. Hamilton, sitting with a Jury comprising Messrs. P. Tester (foreman), L. Dunbar and D. Drummond, Mr. A. W. Mackinlay L. representing the Gas Company, and Mr. W. M. Brown—certain owners whose property was damaged.

Mr. H. T. Brooks, Superintendent of the Fire Brigade Department, was also called as a witness. He stated that he inspected the house at No. 13, Chung Shing Street, but could find no signs of an explosion having occurred on the top of the house.

The inquiry was adjourned until the afternoon of July 4.

TRAGEDY OF THE UNWANTED CHILD

Tynan—who, according to the latest ideas, would have had every excuse for having no children, for she had to work hard all her life—was inspired by her little ones to write many lovely verses; my own favourite is the one which includes the lines:

Give me a cheek that's like a peach,
Two arms to clasp me from the cold;
And all my heaven's within my Just four years old.

Unwanted?

Thousands of us mothers would like to see that hateful word expunged from the dictionary in so far as it is applicable to children. It belongs only to a thoughtless, post-war world in which, alas! mental unrest and cynicism and neuroticism have affected more people than we like to think.

But in spite of those disquieting child-cruelty figures I believe, as everyone must, that sanity is slowly returning and that home, in the highest and best sense of the term, is going to be restored to its old and rightful place in the social scheme.

The Trade Commission.

The proposal to appoint a small Commission to enquire into the various suggestions that have recently been made in favour of protective duties to encourage local industries is an excellent move. There is nothing like open discussion for removing a sense of grievance; even though it may not lead to anything very substantial. There is no getting away from the fact that the last two years have seen so many financial disturbances, with such a steady downward trend of trade, that there is a very widespread suspicion that the whole of the old system has broken down and ought to be scrapped. Things are not quite so bad as that; but there can be no harm in discovering exactly where the shoe pinches and keeping an open mind as to means of easing the stress.

Practically every other community has had a similar inquest, and a great deal of very interesting material has been collected; though it must be admitted that most of the experiments have either been disappointing or have not yet had time to prove themselves. The usual conclusion is that "we are now in a position to take full advantage of any improvement in the industrial position." It is the improvement that carries.

The experts who have been called in to advise always begin by distinguishing between the "primary" and the "secondary" industries. Primary industries are those that can hold their own in the world market. Secondary industries are on a smaller scale, and are dependent on the advantage they hold of being on the spot, and being able to give personal and immediate attention. Under normal conditions the big industries do not require protection. The Argentine, for instance, does not need to protect wheat; a duty would only mean giving wheat-growers an unfair reward at the expense of the consumer. One of the most serious symptoms of our present malaise is that in most countries even the big industries are at present protected in most countries as a defence against currency depreciation, which has the same effect as sweating in enabling a producer to sell at an unnaturally low price—a price, that is, which could not be permanently maintained by his whole product without insolvency.

We do not need any Commission to discover for us that in Hong Kong our only primary industry is the distribution trade. Our godowns take the place of farms and factories; and anything that would have the effect of making that business unnecessarily expensive would only tend to make us poorer and not richer. It may be said also that Banking, in view of the extraordinary tricks often played with the mainland currencies, amounts to another "primary"; but the Banks—as distinguished from the money-lenders—stand to gain by general prosperity, and their interests do not need to be separately considered, except in respect of the variations of the exchange rate. Nothing paralyzes trade so completely as a jumpy exchange. The effects are only partially alleviated by forward contracts. These may reassure the wholesale seller, but still leave the retailer wondering whether he would not do better by buying from Japan and receiving his goods several weeks sooner.

Our secondary industries partly consist of a small number of big scale or factory enterprises, cement and beer, for instance. There is no use ignoring that the effect of any duty is to raise prices; that is, the object. A scarcity of imported goods is created which compels the consumer to give a higher price for the local article. If the advantage is sufficient to enable the factory to export, the community may gain as a whole, but in any case the general consumer has to pay more for what he gets. Our other industries, the small home industry that is carried on the ground floor of a house, flourish best when shop goods, or consumers goods, are cheap, and the cost of living low.

Sir Frederick Maze has been interviewed by the Colonial Secretary and other Ministers in London, and there is no doubt that the best thing that could happen would be a reduction of the Chinese Customs Tariff by about half. But it is difficult to see what argument could be used by Hong Kong to secure such a concession. The strongest argument of all, that the present rates lead to wholesale smuggling, which cannot be checked, is not one that would come with a very good grace from this Colony.

PERFORMING LION AT LARGE

2,000 Spectators Panic
In India

Bombay. A performing lion jumped over the sides of the cage and threw 2,000 spectators into a panic at a circus, says a report from Amrell (Baroda State) to a local paper. A stampede ensued but the lion escaped through an exit without hurting anyone. An alarm was raised and the circus troupe themselves captured the beast from a neighbouring compound. Reuter.

HERE, THERE and EVERYWHERE

His Favourite Author

* During the three days which he spent in prison before he was granted bail, Mr. Samuel Insull read Mr. Phillips Oppenheim's "The Strange Boarders of Palace Crescent."

He reads all Oppenheim's books, a preference which was shared by the late Lord Balfour.

When Balfour was in Washington for the Naval Conference, he made his first discovery of O. Henry.

His room contained a long line of books by a writer who was unknown to him. He took one volume down at random.

Before he left Washington he had read them all.

Bullitt Before Moscow

The British Embassy will no longer be diplomacy's star building in Moscow.

Mr. "Bill" Bullitt, who is nothing if not ambitious, has completed his plans for the American Embassy. It will be a vast building, and will be capable of housing not only the Ambassador but his staff of nearly 100 persons.

The site is on the famous Sparrow Hills.

When he sits on the porch on a hot summer evening Mr. Bullitt's chair will be on the exact spot from which Napoleon had his first view of Moscow.

The building, which is in the classical colonial style, is modelled on Jefferson's Monticello. Doubtless, if Mr. Bullitt had his way, it would also bear the Jeffersonian inscription: "God forbid that we should ever be 20 years without a rebellion."

Football Is So Political

The special issue of recent postage stamps in honour of the world's football championship held in Italy is only one example of the political importance which European Governments now attach to football.

Before their departure for Italy the Hungarian team were received in audience by General Goemboes, the Prime Minister. Stress was laid on the importance of their mission to the political future of their country.

The Yugoslav Government sent an official telegram congratulating the Czechoslovak Government on its country's football victory over England and underlining the solidarity of the Slav peoples.

Perhaps the British Government will now convey a delicate hint to the Football Association that Continental tours should be undertaken with thorough preparation or abandoned altogether.

Your Daily Smile!

Another Lie About Scotland

A Scotsman once helped a friend out with his income tax. He came to live with him as a dependant.

Effective

He was talking with great vigour against corporal punishment for boys, which he declared never did any good. "Take my own case," he exclaimed. "I was caned but once in my life, and that was for speaking the truth."

"Well," retorted somebody in the audience, "it cured you."

Film Director—So you think you can stand the severe duties of a film actor? You know, in this picture we may find it necessary to throw you down a flight of stairs into a barrel of water!

"No wonder," said the host, "considering one of his sons has just entered the ministry!"

TRAGEDY OF THE UNWANTED CHILD CRUELTY INCREASING IN GREAT BRITAIN

REASONS FOR NEGLECT

(By Mrs. Belloc Lowndes.)

London. The "latest rules" of hygiene and eugenics.

WE may be called with varying degrees of emphasis and justification a nation of shopkeepers, of sportsmen, or of gardeners. There can be no doubt at all that we are still a nation of child-lovers. Many of the enormous social improvements effected within recent memory have been for the benefit, directly or indirectly, of children. How comes it, then, that no week passes without our reading in our newspapers the story of some dreadful act of cruelty to children, and that the head of the National Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children can testify that child cruelty is increasing in Britain?

It is evident that many, if not most, of these pitiable little victims are in the category of "unwanted" children—in itself a problem that occasions the greatest concern among many people, of whom I may claim to be one.

We need not be sentimentalists to stop and wonder how anything so intimately attaching as is the average child to the average parent can be unwanted once it is there, instinct with the wonder and miracle of life. Yet so it is.

What has brought about this disquieting phenomenon?

One illuminating reply to this difficult question was given during a debate in the House of Lords early this year. Towards the end of the discussion, which was closely affiliated to the matter with which I am dealing, a noble lord observed: "When I was Under-Secretary at the Ministry of Transport two or three years ago, I was able to give figures which showed that among the income tax paying class there was a greater increase in the purchase of motor-cars than there was in the production of babies. If I may respectfully say so, the argument of not being able to afford it is the excuse of people who want to be relieved of the responsibility of looking after children. There is no question about that I could give scores of cases where that is literal 'true.'"

But that y concerns a limited, though fear increasing, class of young parents, a class to whom the enjoyment of material pleasures is the most important if not the only real end in life.

An Ancient Reason

Another reason, and one which is as ancient as the world itself, is that in each generation the old saying that "thinking makes it so" becomes increasingly true. The fathers and mothers of those young couples who frankly do not want to be parents regarded marriage as implying children. Indeed, one may even go farther and say that the average husband and wife of thirty or forty years ago felt uneasy, surprised, and often truly disappointed if their marriage brought them to family.

In those days the coming of a child was regarded by every newly married couple as so inevitable that there was no question of whether they would be able to "afford" a baby.

The pleasures which involve constant absences from home, and, above all, the diverting to other things of the money which the nurture and up-bringing of children entail was never for an instant considered. The modern attitude to potential parenthood would, indeed, have filled the Victorian world with astonishment, as well as with dismay.

The parents of most of our "unwanted" children to-day are generally found in what are now usually known as "highbrow circles." These circles consist of men and women full of what their more robust forebears would have called "strange whimsies."

To my mind these are among the few people in the world who are justified in their fear of parenthood, for when they do have children their children are certainly to be pitied—even if they are brought up according to

More Care For Babies

I cannot help thinking that one reason why so unnatural a phenomenon as the unwanted child has arisen in our midst is that young married people are now constantly told of the tremendous thought and care that ought to be taken over any and every infant born into a world of trouble. Until comparatively lately a baby was supposed just to grow, like Topsy, in "Uncle Tom's Cabin," and even the best of mothers did not worry over much how her child was fed or clothed, so long as the child appeared happy and healthy. Indeed, how could a mother of, say, eight or more children spend the anxious thought, time, and money to put the three in what seems to me to be their proper order—which a young parent often spends to-day over her one forlorn baby?

In the last two or three days a little story, which touched me very much, was told me of a woman who looks marvellously well and happy, although she is many times a grandmother. She was heard exclaim: "If I hadn't had fourteen children, how lonely I should feel now!"

No doubt she was thinking, when she made that remark, that the majority of her children are grown up, married, and far away; but she still has the good fortune to have at home a girl, now fourteen, who is the pride and joy of her heart.

The average human being who has a sensitive and feeling heart dreads loneliness in old age more than almost anything else. That dread cannot touch the happy parent of good children, for the average son and daughter undoubtedly do bring a great deal of loving companionship into the life of elderly parents.

The truth is that in this matter of fatherhood and motherhood no one can buy his or her experience. Some unfortunate couples find, when it is too late, that they have missed what has been to unnumbered millions all over the world the happiest thing in life.

Fascination Of Children

There is no civilised country, East or West, in which the fascination of children and the radiant joys of parenthood have not been the themes of great poetry. A mother of our time, Katharine

WIMBLEDON SURPRISE

AMERICANS WIN

London, To-day.

George Lott, American Davis Cup player and "stormy petrel" of tournament tennis, and Sarah Palfrey, America's No. 2 ranking player, were fully extended by Fujikura, Japan's No. 3 ranking player, and Miss Brazier, the match going the full distance before the American combination won.

In the first set the Americans led 4-1, but beautiful net play by the Japanese, coupled with steady driving by Miss Brazier saw the score levelled after eight games. The losers then went out at 7-5 to complete a remarkable recovery.

The third set proved the closest. Lott's superior service, smashing, end driving, added to Miss Palfrey's dainty volleying, being the deciding factor in an excellent match.

This was Miss Palfrey's second match of the afternoon, as she had previously played Mrs. Godfree in the singles.

HARE'S BRILLIANT RECOVERY. C. E. Hare, the 19-year-old Birmingham player, and Lester offered a stout resistance to R. Miki, Japanese non-playing Davis Cup captain, and J. V. Kirby, South African champion, and did not succumb until 47 games had been decided.

The British pair led 5-2 in the first set, but the excellent combination of their opponents, who both approached the net and volleyed successfully, saw the match level at 5-all.

Miki was especially good in his smashing, invariably finding the middle line between his opponents. Kirby lent admirable support with cunning drop shots.

After winning the first set at 7-5, the British pair fell to pieces, in the next two, Hare being particularly weak. His opponents took every advantage of his lapse and he was forced to bear the brunt of the attack.

Hare then recovered brilliantly to save the fourth set, in which the winners were leading 5-1, and playing sparkling tennis he was mainly responsible for the Miki-Kirby combination dropping the next six games in a row to lose the set and level the match.

The effort, however, was too great, and a very tired British pair succeeded in winning but one game in the final set.—Reuter.

HENRY COTTON WINS BRITISH GOLF TITLE

Cotton's rounds yesterday were 72 and 79, as compared with 67 and 65 in the first two rounds. On the last round he was out in 40 and home in 39.

IN A DRIVING WIND.

Brews had the best two final rounds, finishing with 70 and 71.

Alfred Padgham, winner of the Dunlop-Southport Trophy from Cotton and one of Britain's chief hopes, was third with 290.

LEADING AMERICANS

Joe Kirkwood, Macdonald Smith, American contenders, and J. Dallemagne, the Frenchman, tied for fourth place with 292.

America's two chief hopes, Denmore Shute, last year's holder, and Gene Sarazen, 1932 winner, cracked up badly and were placed 19th and 20th, respectively, with 301 and 302.

Jack McLean, the Walker Cup player and former Scottish and Irish champion, proved to be the leading amateur with 300, his 69 for the first 18 holes yesterday being the best round of the day. He, however, took 78 over the next eighteen.

J. Nolan, the Irish entrant, failed miserably over the last two rounds, taking over 160.—Reuter.

COTTON'S RECORD

Though playing under poor conditions during the course of the five days play Cotton lowered the course record during the qualifying round with a 66, and, after returning a card of 67 in the first round, reduced his own record in the second round with a 65 aggregate for 36 holes, to establish a record that has never been equalled on a championship course.

Cotton who is at present engaged as a professional at the Waterloo Club in Brussels, is the first Englishman to win the championship since 1925.—British Wireless Service.

RECORD ENTRY

A record entry was received for the British Open Golf Championship. In the draw appeared the names of 313 players, the previous record being 296 entries for the Open Championship of 1930, at Hoylake.

The Royal St. George's links at Sandwich, and the Royal Cinque Ports course at Deal were used for the qualifying stages on June 25 and 26, one round being played on each course. One hundred players returning the lowest aggregates for 36 holes, together with all those trying for the hundredth place, were eligible to take part in the championship proper, over 72 holes of the Royal St. George's course.

THIRTEEN SPANIARDS

No fewer than 52 entries were received from overseas, including 13 from Spain, 10 from France, eight from the United States, five from Belgium, four each from South Africa and South America, two each from Australia, Germany and Holland, and one each from India and Italy.

HAGEN'S ABSENCE

Many people thought—and hoped—that the magnetic Walter Hagen, four times winner, would enter again, but it was not to be.

Executive decisions in accordance with that policy must rest as hitherto with the High Commissioner, to whom he intended to send a full account of the interview.—British Wireless Service.

To-day's Short Story.

CRACK
O'WHIPSBy H. A.
Manhood.

MUTTERING angrily at the crawling progress of a hawk in his path, his bleak thin-lipped gipsy face rippling in a kind of agony under his smart bowler hat, Squaler Adams swung his circus-painted van out of the Whitechapel-road between high, dingy walls into Swan and Abbot Yard.

Children skipped before him, abusing aggressively for destroying a grotto of dirt and stones and flowers built on a monhole cover exactly in the middle of the yard, but he hardly noticed them, stopping tumultuously outside the shabby balconyed tavern from which the yard drew its name.

Dogs barked inside the van, as it stopped, but a rapping word from Squaler quietened them. Lighting a new cigarette from a dragged butt, he stiff-stepped to the door, and the publican, fat, bald as nothing, and timid under his merri-ness, looked up from his betting slips with jocular surprise:

"Well, well, if it ain't Squaler himself! Welcome, m'boy!" "Mister Adams to you," Squaler said with vicious distinctness.

"All right, all right! But ain't I your friend?"

"Friend?" Squaler forked his fingers derisively. "I ain't got any and I don't need any."

To hell with you, then, the publican thought, but he did not say so: "Well, I'm sorry you feel that way about it," he sighed. "Here, have a drink." He beckoned Squaler into the sour-pickled bar-room.

"What's the almighty trouble?" he asked cautiously, glad that somebody had knocked Squaler at last. "What's gone wrong with your schedule? Thought you were booked for a northern circuit."

Squaler Adams and His World Famous Troupe of Performing Poodles saw it in the gossip meself."

QUIET WEDDING AT REGISTRY OFFICE.

Nonaghan—Schepelova.

A quiet wedding took place yesterday afternoon at the Registry Office of Mr. Stanley Leonard Monaghan of 9, Hillywood Road, to Miss Vera Schepelova.

The bride, who has for the last nine months been attached to the staff of the Cecilia Beauty Salon, Kowloon, wore a charming pink silk dress trimmed with white organdie ruffles. She wore a beige straw hat, and was attended by Mrs. C. Forrest, proprietress of the Cecilia Beauty Salon. The wedding was witnessed by Messrs. Frank Roberts and A. I. Cash.

CHILD KILLED AT YAUMATI.Fatal Injuries While Playing In Road.

A Chinese girl, Wong Hoi, aged 14 years, was knocked down and killed by a motor lorry, No. 1201, near the Yaumati Railway Crossing, at 6.30 p.m. yesterday. Deceased, with another girl, Wong Lai, aged 2, was playing in the road when the lorry, in an attempt to avoid another child, struck them.

They were both conveyed to the Kowloon Hospital, where Wong Hoi subsequently succumbed to her injuries. Wong Lai is still detained. The children were both living at No. 3, Railway Quarters, Yaumati.

COLONY DOG ORDINANCE

MAGISTRATE'S WARNING. The menace of un-muzzled dogs was referred to in strong terms by Mr. E. I. Wynne Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy this week, when he announced that, in future, the fine would be $25.00 instead of the customary $10.00.

Mr. Wynne Jones spoke emphatically of the awful death of a girl, who recently died from rabies in the Kowloon Hospital, and urged dog-owners to take particular care that their animals should not be on the street without a muzzle and off a lead.

The publican poured again and spat clumsily, surprised at his own daring, hating Squaler but afraid of him, too, consoling himself with the thought that he brought good, profitable custom to the house. Astonishing how much he could drink; and it all went to his eyes so that they seemed to float in pure gin, cold, bright and hard like poisonous crystals.

Fully aware of all that the publican was thinking Squaler drank gulpingly, spitefully amused, cunningly enslaving him with an off-yard of yours for a week or two, handed explanation: "I want that private, see? Couple of falls broke back stage in a damned four-penny joint; killed Six and Seven, two of my best. Busted my show. Someone done it on purpose."

"Terrible bad luck, Mister Adams." (God help 'em, whoever it was!)

MONDAY'S STORY

Monday's story will be "The Dust That Was Barren," by P. C. Wren.

"But worse for them," Squaler sneered, and a gold tooth glimmered like a shot in waiting. "The management wouldn't listen when I talked compensation. May be they wish they had now, the swine!" Smoothly he pulled a newspaper—a smudgy country sheet—from his pocket, spreading it on the puddled counter: "Act o' God, in a manner of speaking," he jeered, and drank again.

Gapingly the publican read of a disastrous fire which had occurred, cause unknown, two dead, in an up-country theatre, and he stuck his thumbs into his waistcoat pockets and scratched nervously to ease a creeping of flesh. He thought how he'd take perishing good care to keep on the right side of such a knife-minded cove.

Satisfied with the publican's expression, Squaler lit another cigarette, poking the smoking butt into a convenient knot-hole as if to show how simple it was to start fire: "Is Jimmy the Dose about?"

"Not right handy." The publican trod upon the cigarette-end with difficulty and eyed a fly-specked clock-face: "He'll be in Mike's pool-room for sure."

"Get one of those brats to take these to him, then." Reaching across the mahogany, Squaler pulled two fluffy white paper chrysanthemums from a vase: "Two more for Squaler Adams. He'll know all about it." He added a shilling as compensation for the messenger, but the publican, smirking appreciatively, foxily substituted a half-penny on his way to the door (just to pay for the flowers), calling with windy authority, sending an urchin running.

When he returned Squaler was gazing at an advertisement for whisky in which a dancing girl leaped seductively, his left eye half-closed against the fume of his cigarette.

"You ought to get one like that for the good of the house," he said. "Yes, Mister Adams." "You'd be able to sell much worse gin than this and no one would notice it. I want that room facing the yard and something to eat as soon as I've parked the van and the dogs, understand?"

The publican nodded, one eye on the clock: "D'you happen to know anything for the two-thirty?" he asked with pathetic hope.

"Red Label 'I' make it," Squaler snapped and turned into the yard and the publican scribbled gratefully. The lists compiled and despatched, his thoughts wailed uneasily. Just like something out of a nightmare this Squaler was for all his smart, tight-fitting clothes, bow ties and thin-soled, pointed yellow boots. A Chinese Judas, that's what he was! But he knew something about training dogs. They did what he wanted them to; they just had to ease that whip of his slicked life out of 'em!—Ah, well. He sighed and spat wholeheartedly, very glad that he was not a poodle in Squaler's string, lumbering into the kitchen to bully-drive his humbling tub of a wife, send her skipping for some of that salt fish Squaler was so fond of. (Continued On Page 12.)

Fruits Served These Ways Will Be Enjoyed

Strawberry Fluff, Fruit Cup And Ambrosia Are Delicious, Tempting

Unfortunately we can't all afford to have in and out of season on our table the great blushing perfect peaches, enormous cherries, and prizes strawberries that we see in show windows. But that's no reason for not serving the specimens of these fruits not so beautiful in dozens of delightful ways.

Try a few of these, for instance:

Strawberry Fluff

Use one egg white, 1 cup hulled strawberries, 1 cup powdered sugar.

Cut strawberries in quarters and put all ingredients into a mixing bowl. Beat with a rotary beater for about twenty minutes. The mixture will expand and become exceedingly light and fluffy. Pile into sherbet cups or parfait glasses and chill thoroughly. Serve with cake or cookies or with a garnish of whipped cream.

Other small fruits and berries can be used in place of strawberries.

Fruit Cups

Fruit cups make tempting desserts. They should be somewhat richer and sweeter than when prepared for appetizers. Diced strawberries, pineapple, oranges, bananas, sweet cherries and grapefruit can be used in various combinations. Prepare the fruit carefully and let stand in a heavy syrup for several hours on ice, to chill and sweeten. Serve in sherbet glasses.

Ambrosia

Peel fine, large, seedless oranges and slice as thinly as possible. Arrange the slices on individual serving plates and sprinkle lightly with powdered sugar and then with shredded coconut. Cover each slice of orange with a layer of shredded fresh pineapple. Add another layer of orange, sugar and coconut. Add a third layer of orange and cover thickly with coconut. Strew with slices of strawberries and put a perfect whole berry right in the very center. Chill several hours and serve.

Sugared Cherries

This is a concoction which has been used by the country housewife since the days of the cradle and flail. When there were more hands than had been expected and the pie was short in the buttry, cherry sauce was resorted to. Use the sour pie cherry for the best results, although the large sweeter varieties are good, too. Wash and pit and fruit. Sprinkle heavily with granulated sugar and let stand an hour or longer on ice to chill. Serve with plain sugar cookies or unsalted crackers and cream cheese and black coffee.

A Novel Potato Roll

One and a half pounds potatoes, one ounce butter, two egg-yolks, two tablespoonful white wine, three tablespoonful cream.

Peel the potatoes and boil them in salted water till soft; drain, steam them dry, then rub through a sieve. Melt the butter in a pan, add the potato purée, the egg-yolks and the wine, with seasonings of salt and pepper. Finally pour in the cream, and mix all well together. Have plenty of bread-crumbs spread on a board, form the potato mixture into a roll, coat this thickly with the crumbs put it on a baking tin and bake for twenty minutes.

SALMON AND CUCUMBER SALAD

1 tin salmon.
1 hard-boiled egg.
8 tomatoes.
1 round lettuce.
Salad cream.

1/2 small cucumber.
Line a dish with lettuce, and take the salmon, wash into it. Decorate with fingers of tomato, chopped egg and cucumber, and sprinkle with salad cream.

CHICKEN CURRY ON IDEAL DISH

Must Be Served With Steaming Rice

FAMOUS HOTEL'S RECIPE

A curried dish gives a menu a certain zest that lifts it out of the everyday class and puts it into the "special occasion" category. Yet curried needn't be used only for party menus. Try adding it to your favourite creamed concoctions and see if the family doesn't greet your efforts at originality with loud cheers of approval.

Curry of chicken, served with steaming rice, makes a perfect main course for a luncheon or a Sunday night supper. Here's the way it is prepared at the Waldorf-Astoria.

Place two and one-half pounds of sliced cooked chicken in a saucepan with six ounces of warmed butter. Stir in one teaspoon of curry powder, one tablespoon of flour and one chopped onion. Season with salt and pepper and pour in one quart of chicken stock. Allow to cook slowly for eight minutes.

Add one-half cup of shredded coconut and let it boil for two minutes. Then pour in one cup of heavy cream and set aside.

In a second pan place six ounces of warmed butter and one chopped onion. Add two cupfuls of cooked rice and simmer for two minutes. Pour in a quart of chicken stock and season. When boiling, cover and bake in a moderate oven for 20 minutes.

When you're ready to serve luncheon, arrange the rice mixture in a mould-like form in the centre of a platter and place the creamed chicken in the middle of the mould. Decorate rice mould with pieces of chutney ginger and raisins and pour the rest of the chicken around the mould on the platter.

VEGETABLE SALAD

Mixed together 1 cup peas, 1 cup shredded string beans, 1 small cucumber, peeled and cut into dice and 6 sliced radishes. Chill, marinate in French dressing for one hour, then place in nests of lettuce leaves and garnish with radish roses and sprigs of watercress. Serve mayonnaise or boiled dressing in a separate dish.

EASY MAPLE ICING

For an easily prepared maple icing, mix confectioner's sugar with maple syrup and add a little butter or cream to keep it soft.

VEGETABLE COCKTAILS HAVE ZEST

Hints When Choosing The Menu

LIMITLESS PROSPECT

Zest—that's what we've got to put into our meals these languid days, girls, if we're to hold our husbands—not to speak of our children. It takes a little thought, but never mind, you'll be repaid.

First of all, get out of whatever rut you're in. If you've been beginning your noon and evening meals with hot soup, try a fruit or vegetable cocktail, colourful and flavourful, for a change.

Be careful, though, if you go in for cocktails that you don't repeat the motif in the main course or dessert. If you have "fruit cocktail," serve vegetable salad; if you start with fruit, go on to vegetables done with mayonnaise or a good French dressing.

In making fruit cocktails, it's well to include one bland fruit in combination with two or more tart ones, and a dash of lemon juice improves all appetizers, fruit and vegetables alike.

Vegetable cocktails must be crisp and well-seasoned. Better not combine too many materials; two or at the most three vegetables will be enough.

Good combinations are cabbage and carrots, tomato and celery, pineapple and nuts—but the prospect is limitless.

Cabbage And Carrot Cocktail
Three-fourths cup finely shredded cabbage, 1-2 cup grated carrot, 1-4 cup minced celery, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons lemon juice.

Let cabbage stand for one hour in ice water which more than covers. Dry between towels. Add carrot, celery, salt and lemon juice. Lift with a fork until thoroughly mixed. Chill well. Serve garnished with threads of green pepper.

Tomato And Celery Cocktail
One good sized tomato, 4 tablespoonfuls minced celery, 4 large ripe olives.

Peel tomato and cut in four slices. In the center of each slice pile a tablespoonful of celery. Cut olives from stones in neat sections lengthwise and arrange them on the celery radiating from the center to the edge of the tomato. Be sure the tomato is thoroughly chilled before peeling.

COLD PREVENTION

Once a day, wipe the mouthpiece of your telephone with a cloth that has been dipped in some sort of a disinfectant solution. This simple procedure will help to prevent colds from being transmitted from one member of the family to another.

Frozen Creams Ideal Desserts For Warm Days

THREE RECIPES

Vanilla Custard Cream

1/2 cup granulated sugar.
2 tablespoonfuls cornstarch.
1 cup sweet milk.
2 egg yolks.
1/8 cup coffee cream.
2 egg whites.
1/16 teaspoon salt.
2 teaspoonfuls vanilla extract.
1 1/2 cups whipping cream.

Mix granulated sugar and cornstarch. Add scalded milk gradually, stirring constantly. Cook in double boiler 25 minutes. Stir several times during cooking process. Combine with well-beaten egg yolks. Cook for about five minutes, or until thick, stirring constantly. Add salt and coffee cream. Mix well, strain and cool. When custard is cool, add vanilla, chilled whipped cream, and fold into custard. Pour into freezing tray and freeze. Before the dessert has frozen solid enough to serve, remove tray from refrigerator. Stir well with a spoon from front to back of tray. Then carefully fold in stiffly beaten egg whites to which salt has been added. Return to refrigerator and allow to finish freezing without further agitation.

Chocolate Cream

1/2 cup granulated sugar.
2 tablespoonfuls cocoa.
1/3 cup water.
1/16 teaspoon salt.
1 1/2 pints coffee cream.
2 tablespoonfuls vanilla.

Mix sugar, cocoa and salt thoroughly. Add hot water. Heat until sugar is thoroughly dissolved. Remove from fire and partially cool. Add cream and pour into refrigerator freezing tray and allow to freeze firmly. Remove to chilled mixing bowl. Add vanilla and whip with electric or hand beater until mixture becomes light and creamy. Return quickly to refrigerator freezing tray and allow to finish freezing. If coffee cream contains less than 20 per cent butter fat is used, use one pint coffee cream for the first freezing and add one-half cup of whipped cream after the whipping process. Whipped cream, folded into the frozen mixture will greatly improve the texture and richness of the dessert.

Strawberry Cream

1/2 cup preserved strawberries (puree).
2 cups coffee cream.

Heat strawberry preserves before putting through puree strainer. Add cream slowly. Beat with rotary egg beater. Chill. Pour into tray and freeze firm. Remove from tray to ice-cold bowl. Beat with rotary egg beater until light. Return to tray and finish freezing without further agitation.

SCUFFLED TOMATOES

4 large tomatoes.
Salt and pepper.
4 eggs.
2 teaspoonfuls of melted butter.
Cut a slice from the stem end of each tomato, and set in buttered ramekins, after removing some of their pulp. Sprinkle each with salt and pepper, then drop an egg in. Season with salt and pepper. Pour half a teaspoonful of the melted butter on top of each dish. Bake in a moderate oven till firm. Serve for breakfast or lunch. Sometimes I sprinkle minced parsley over the butter. This is enough for four people.

Mallow Nut Roll Is Popular Confection

This mallow nut roll made with marshmallows and nuts is a popular holiday and company confection. The recipe follows:

Mallow Nut Roll

3 cups sugar.
1 1/2 cups milk.
3 squares chocolate.
2 tablespoonfuls butter.
1/2 teaspoon salt.
1 teaspoon vanilla.
1 cup diced marshmallows.
23 cup nuts, broken.
Mix sugar, milk, chocolate, butter and salt. Boil gently, stirring frequently, until soft ball forms when portion is tested in a cup of cold water. Set aside and do not move for 25 minutes. Add vanilla and beat until candy is very thick and creamy. Add rest of ingredients and shape into roll 1 1/2 inches in diameter.

Hint For Serving Canned Fruit.

Canned fruit should always be opened an hour or two before it is used. It becomes richer after it has been allowed to absorb oxygen. They should not be allowed to remain in the cans, however.

Meat Bolling Hint

When bolling meat, put the side that will be uppermost on the serving dish towards the bottom of the saucepan.

Run cold water over egg plates before giving them their real washing if you want to simplify this chore.

Soothing Drinks To Take at Night

"Fruit Nightcaps"

Fruit is the chief ingredients of the "nightcap" suggested by a doctor for victims of colds and chills. For instance, a large desert-spoonful of black currant jam or jelly mixed into a tumblerful of boiling water makes a fine drink, especially if a little grated nutmeg be added.

To check a chill, make a drink of the juice of an orange and a lemon, a tablespoonful of melted honey, and a few drops of essence of ginger or peppermint. Heat the mixture in a double pan, but do not allow it to boil. Take just before going to bed.

Another healthy drink is prepared from a couple of washed and cored apples cooked in sufficient water to cover, pressed through a sieve, and mixed with a dessert-spoonful of honey and the juice of half a lemon. Add boiling water to this puree, and take some twice a day if you feel out of sorts.

Tomato juice is a new-comer to the ranks of health drinks. Try it, strained into half a tumblerful of hot water, if you feel a feverish cold coming on.

Fruit Stains Easily Removed With Starch

If fruit stains your dress or table cloth, cover the stain at once with powdered starch and let it remain for at least an hour.

Upon rubbing off the starch every trace of the stain will probably be gone. If the stain has dried, rub each side of the material with yellow soap, spread over this a paste made of starch and cold water and rub it well.

Then expose it to the sun and air until the stain disappears. Another trick is to dip the stain into sour butter-milk if you happen to have any around.

Left-Over Applesauce Makes Tasty Dessert

Left-over sweetened and spiced applesauce can be spread on biscuit dough, rolled up tightly like a jelly roll and baked in a moderate oven for 20 minutes. When served warm with cream or hard sauce it makes a tempting dessert for luncheon, supper or dinner.

WHEN POLISHING STOVES

A teaspoon of powdered alum mixed with stove-polish means less work and greater economy of polish.

BOOTLEG WHISKY RAISES DEAD

Staggers From Coffin After Drink

Helsingfors.

The body of a peasant youth in the north of Finland was placed in a coffin and carried to an outhouse to await burial.

His friends gathered about the coffin to drink to the repose of his soul—with "bootleg" whisky.

Then one of them suggested that the dead should take a last drink with them. Accordingly they forced a liberal amount of the liquor down the boy's throat.

A few minutes after returning to the house they were amazed to see him staggering across the court in an attempt to join them.

The whisky had revived him.—Reuter.

CRACK o' WHIPS

Out in the yard the lawdry-painted van buzzed and backed, roaring through the gate-way into the inner yard as if it too had been well-trained by Squaler, children scattering noisily, assembling in the gate-way in curiosity, clutching hand-bills snatched from the van, unafraid of Squaler and hopeful of entertainment.

But Squaler slammed the gate upon them before losing his poise from the kennel boxes in the van. At a word the seven dogs ceased in their wanderings, grouping together at the foot of the high brick wall, pathetically alert, gazing patiently, hungrily, determined to understand, to avoid punishment.

Squaler brought a stinking lump of beef and a bag of coarse biscuits and sprung the blade of his knife, calling the dogs to him one by one: "Here, One!"

examining mouth, ears and paws, feeding it meat and sending it back to its place against the wall with a biscuit to be eaten at ease: "Here, Two!"

The meat distributed without the need for punishment, he lifted the kennel boxes from the van, clearing a space of public litter and ranging them against the wall as they were numbered, ordering the dogs into them, using his first cruelty when Eight, puzzled by the mis-ling pair, entered Number Six. Filling a pan with water from a wall-tap he ordered them to drink, again by numbers, forcing obedience with a whip.

Back again to the boxes and then, as they were called, they must take their places in line for a circus-trot upon their hind legs, bowing in time with the threatening whip.

But the yard was breathless, full of sour furnace heats. Summer hung over the city like a suffocating depth of blue wool. The rumbling of traffic, women's voices, the foot-cross-stitch in gossip, the foot-race of heavy-shod children about a barrel-organ, a tapping from the colliery's shop in a corner of the yard; all came thickly, sluggishly, as if bound itself were oppressed.

More children stood under a line of newly watered window-boxes, poised in strange cactus shapes, mouths open to catch the drips, a freeze symbolising the need of the world and its everlasting dependence upon an offhanded power on high.

Soon Squaler wanted to drink again, and the dogs were ordered to their boxes. Whip in hand he entered the Swan and Abbot by a side door, nodding to the bookmakers and their shabby runners accounting at the bar. The publican grinted gleefully, excitedly, whispering good news: "Red Label won all right."

"The tip's worth a quart then—gin, man, gin, not hopwater."

The publican regretted his enthusiasm: "Jimmy the Dose has got the goods and will bring 'em along after dark."

"Good!" Squaler tapped a fat shoulder with the grease-smooth handle of his whip: "The best gin, mind."

Alone in a musty, broken-celling-

ed room dreary with many potted mirrors, with ragged-curtained windows overlooking the inner yard,

Squaler hung his coat and collar upon a dusty staghorn and set down his bowler hat and with his feet mounted on the sofa bed.

While he ate he read an old newspaper methodically from page

to page—news, advertisements, every inch. Sweeping a space clear on the table, he took an old pack of cards from his pocket, jerked
